Fondazione per l'architettura / Torino

The Fondazione per l'architettura / Torino enhances the social role of architects and promotes architecture as a discipline at the service of the quality of life and the social welfare, facilitating interdisciplinary relationships between the world of design, construction, technology and the world of culture.

We investigate present and future social needs, study innovative responses and implement concrete actions in the area; we stimulate change and seek tools to face the challenges of the future with conscious and responsible actions.

To realize these goals, we collaborate with local institutions and stakeholders, interact in synergy with institutional tables and define the political agendas and investment actions based on the urban, architectural assets relevant to the profession, by listening to and collaborating with the 7000 architects in the province of Turin and all interested citizens.

We are organized on a regional basis and our activities often involve the national and international level. So we have joined the collective effort encouraged by the European Commission and designed our program using the three key dimensions of the New European Bauhaus as reference paradigms:

→ SUSTAINABILITY

→ INCLUSION

→ BEAUTY

CONTEXTS

*SOCIAL WELL-BEING

We work on health-focused projects, experimenting with the impact of high-quality architecture and culture on the well-being of people and communities, through specific actions such as the restyling, humanisation and relocation of care spaces.

*URBAN REGENERATION

We are committed to bottom-up experimental processes for urban regeneration, starting from the desires of communities and the spaces they inhabit. We bring citizens together with architects and designers to help communities realize their needs and transform their places.

*EDUCATION

We work for and with the school world in two directions: to rethink the contemporary school as a sustainable and inclusive physical space specifically designed for school life; to promote architecture in schools as a discipline, with the aim of stimulating a sense of beauty, quality and social utility. Since 2022 we run an architecture school for children: SOUx Torino, as a spin-off of SOU - Farm Cultural Park.

*SUSTAINABILITY

We are committed to searching for innovative solutions to counter the environmental crisis and promote ecological transition, identifying good practices and inspirations to enhance the project as a tool for social, economic and environmental transformation, involving architects, citizens, companies and institutions.
